

Inhabiting the Anthropocene

How we live
changes
everything

Cities and Our Future: Governing in the Anthropocene

City mayors are willing to lead on the environmental challenges of the Anthropocene—the current geologic epoch in which human activities shape the planet. But does our federal system allow cities to govern? What ethical vision should guide cities' relation to the environment? Read former Norman Mayor Cindy Rosenthal's blog posts on these questions, then join Oklahoma experts to discuss the future of urban environmental governance.

<https://inhabitingtheanthropocene.com>

Cindy Simon Rosenthal
Director and Curator
Carl Albert Center

Susan Atkinson
Senior Planner
Oklahoma City Planning Department

DeVon Douglass
Chief Resilience Officer
City of Tulsa

Cody Pepper
Urban Conservation Lead
The Nature Conservancy, OK Chapter

Tuesday, March 6 | 4:00 p.m. | Gould Hall Gallery
reception to follow

OKLAHOMA
BIOLOGICAL SURVEY

For accommodations, please call (405) 325-6372.
The University of Oklahoma is an equal opportunity institution.